HOOVER CAN'T UNDERSTAND

Herbert Hoover has lost his contact with the pulse of the people. He refuses to believe the American people won't dig into their pockets and send food and clothing to the suffering people of Belgium, Holland, Poland, Norway, Rumania and France.

The American heart is as big as ever. Our sympathy goes out to unfortunates in countries occupied by Germans. But, for once we aren't going to let our sentiment run away with our common sense.

Herbert Hoover suggests that an agreement be reached, whereby the British would lift their blockade to let food and clothing and medicine through to the suffering; and that in turn, Germany agree not to take of these supplies from those for whom it is intended. Mr. Hoover suggests that is the way it was done in the last war.

Well, it's not going to be done that way in this war, Mr. Hoover; and for the simple reason that no one of us would accept any agreement entered into by Germany. We don't know how well Germany kept its word in the last war, but we do know that there's nothing on hand to make us believe any promise made by Hitler.

No, Mr. Hoover. It's hard to see innocent people suffer, but we are not going to let you, the Red Cross or anybody else, send American food or clothing to any country occupied by Germany.

There are two chances of winning this war from Germany. One of them is for the British blockade to cause Germany to run out of oil or some other war essential; and, the other is that suffering, hunger and sheer desperation may ignite a spark of revolution either within Germany itself, or the countries occupied by Germany. A hungry man will do desperate things. Not until hunger stalks amid the suffering of Europe and drives them to the same desparation prevalent in 1789 in France, will the revolution come to liberate Europe. Feed the people in countries occupied by Germany and they will never rebel against their Nazi masters. It is a hard, uncharitable thing to say, but we declare that it would be a great and irretrievable mistake to grant Mr. Hoover's request.

DON'T USE "XMAS"

We would like to join the movement to insist on spelling it Christmas instead of Xmas.

In mathematics, "X" stands for the UNknown! Surely, it is not proper to use the X in connection with Christ.

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING

There is again a difference of opinion as to the date on which Thanksgiving should be celebrated, but the truly thankful spirit exists such differences do not count a great deal. The main thing is to make it a real day of Thanksgiving.

It is one characteristic of our ungrateful human race, that the more blessings they have more they seem unconscious of them. The story of the first Thanksgiving illustrates the truth. When the pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth, Mass., there were only 102 in their little company. They set foot on that cold shore in the dead of winter, December 20, when it was impossible to raise any kind of a crop for months to come. Within four months 44 of them died of disease or lack of sufficient food. They had to conceal their deaths so the hovering Indians would not know how weak they were and descend on the feeble remnant with scalping knives and tomahawks.

When the summer came, they were able to raise a fair crop, which made it probable they could live through one more winter. In their joy at that very limited and uncertain prospect, they observed the first day of Thanksgiving to God.

What a little that was to be thankful for, according to the big ideas of our time! They had no comforts, only the most primitive tools with which to work, they were far from help from their former homes, their future was dark and gloomy at the best. But just because they saw enough food to last through one more winter, they sang psalms and were full of cheer.

What a lesson to us in our time, we enjoy life, surrounded by so many comforts, with a wealth of amusement and opportunity offered us. We have 1,000 times more than the pilgrim fathers had. Yet, they thanked God, while we usually pass the day over with scarcely a thought. —Peninsula Enterprise.

SPEAKING OF PRODUCTION

Maj.-Gen. James A. Woodruff, commander of he First Corps Area, said the War Department had postponed New England's second draft call. He added: "Barracks aren't going up as rapidly as we had hoped." — From a Boston news dispatch.

I was announced by the Third Corps Area that the second draft here would be postponed until January 3, pending completing of housing and sanitary and hospital facilities at Fort George Meade.—From the Baltimore Sun.

A disagreement between union leaders caused about 700 unskilled laborers to leave their jobs at this United States Army base, where housing facilities for National Guardsmen and draftees were under construction.—From a Fort Dix (N. J.) news dispatch.

"I can assure you that German production capacity is the highest in the world .... for we are today in a position to mobilize the powers of almost all Europe." From speech by Adolph Hitler.

ANOTHER THERMOPYLAE

Two hundred and three hundred years ago a small band of liberty loving men defended their lives and the democratic way of life against the totalitarian hordes of the East in the narrow gorges of Thermopylae in ancient Greece.

Today, less than fifty miles from the same spot in the forbidding crags of the Pindus mountains, another small band of liberty loving men in whose veins runs the blood of their ancestors at Thermopylae again defend their lives and the democratic way of living against the hordes of totalitarianism—this time from the west.

History seems to be repeating itself and who knows but that the courage and determination of that proud and plucky little nation may not again become the turning point toward a complete and final victory for the preservation of the system of democracy which that very nation originated three thousand years ago?

Yes, history is repeating itself except in one very important particular. Two thousand years ago no bombs were dropped from the sky on helpless old men and women and children. Two thousands years ago wars were won or lost by sheer bravery of men on the battlefield. Today loss of morale in those left behind may mean the difference between defeat or victory—and hunger, sickness, loss of homes, are not conducive to high morale even in the proudest nations.

The famous killed mountain soldier of Greece— the Krono— feels amply satisfied if he has enough powder, enough bullets and a chunk of black bread and a handful of ripe olives, but those he leaves behind must shift the best way they can for themselves.

The Army salary is only about fifty cents a month, inadequate perhaps, for tobacco—but no allowance to families are made in the Greek Army simply because the little nation cannot afford it.

There are no industries, no raw materials, no wealth in Greece. In normal times that nation carries on with its merchant marine and the generosity of its sons in other lands where, by their contribution to the wealth of those lands, they may themselves have achieved wealth and social success. But in times like these, when every man in Greece from the age of 19 to 55 must of necessity be in the Army, and the need of those left behind is considerable, such help alone is not sufficient.

The small number of fellow Americans of Greek descent in this city (Norfolk) have amazed us all with their almost unbelievable generosity. In less than three days they have raised over $10,009. Many of them have given the last dollar they had. Others have given small fortunes that they had saved for their old age and a rainy day. That bravery equal to that on the battlefield.

(From Norfolk News-Index.)

BACK TO SERFDOM

The Nazi grip on Norway seem safe; it will prevents any "fifth column" activities against the new rulers of that nation. The country is apparently in a state of serfdom. One of the new rules is that no farmer may go to town without special permission and "unemployed" Norwegians must go to Germany, sharing the fate that Polish laborers have already been forced to accept. France is next in line under the totalitarian plan of things. —From Boston Post.

NOT READY FOR STATEHOOD

Unofficial but complete returns count 59,324 votes cast in Hawaii's statehood plebiscite. The division in favor of entering the Union as a state is 39,413 to 19,911. The addition to the Union of more states is a subject of national concern, but is all the more true because he chief possible additions are islands, not contiguous to the present states.

The vote in Hawaii bears on whether Congress should grant statehood only as reflection of local desires. The opposition by a third of the home vote indicates extensive local opinion holding Hawaii should not become the forty ninth state. A total vote of less than 60,000 — located several thousand miles from the mainland— looks exceedingly small to have power to elect a member of Congress and two Senators.

It would seem highly unlikely that Congress could seriously consider Hawaii's bid for statehood.

Vegetable Laxative Makes Happy Friends

Here's a laxative that usually acts thoroughly as harsher ones but is a gentle persuader for intestines when used this way: A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight; a drink of water. There's usually time for a good night's rest, with a gentle, thorough action next morning relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT is a splendid combination of vegetable ingredients, chief of which is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" that helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. It's economical. 25 to 40 doses: 25c.

ATTITUDES TOWARD THE GOSPEL MESSAGE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 8:4-15
GOLDEN TEXT—Take heed therefore how ye hear.—Luke 8:18

In the that hath ears to hear, let him hear," cried Jesus as He taught the parable of the sower. Thus He reveals the heart of the lesson—that it is the hearing of the Word of God, and the manner in which it is heard that determines the destiny of men.

One may hear and yet not hear at all. Some who imagine themselves deaf have perfect hearing, but are so preoccupied with their own thoughts that they do not grasp what they hear. To be such a state as far as spiritual things are concerned is desperately serious. Jesus cries to you, "Take heed how ye hear the Word of God."

A parable is an earthly story relating common things of life to illustrate and present heavenly truth regarding the spiritual life. Parables are simple, but profound. A parable does not need interpretation, but it does need application. The parable of the sower, or rather of the four kinds of soil, presents the hearers of God's Word as being like four different fields.

I. The Wayside (vv. 5 and 12).

Through the fields of Palestine ran well-beaten paths, so hard from many footsteps that no seed could find lodgment and grow. The hearts of men are like that, with the world rolling its heavy wheels over the ruts of custom, habit and worldly pleasure add their bit, and the din and clatter of unwholesome or nonsensical radio programs cut their paths across our lives.

Little wonder that so much of the Word of God which we do hear is picked up by the devil's own birds and carried away. Let's break up the hard ground of our life's way, side.

II. The Rocky Ground (vv. 6 and 13).

Here we have the shallow soil on the rocky ledge, where seeds grow as if in a hothouse, but wither when the steady heat of the summer sun comes upon them.

Shallow hearers are those who receive the word with joy, are carried away with emotional enthusiasm, and seem to be most promising as followers of Christ until the real temptations and trials of life come, and then they are gone. They are like the soldier who enjoys wearing the uniform and marching in the parade past the reviewing stand with bands playing and flags flying, but who deserts his post when his company goes into battle. Surely none of us wants to be that kind of a hearer of God's Word.

III. The Thorny Ground (vv. 7 and 14).

The soil was good, the seed found its place to live and grow, but no one kept down the weeds, and they, as usual, got the best of the good seed.

Note carefully in verse 14 what are the destructive thorns and weeds in the spiritual garden. The very things people in our most seek —riches and pleasure—are the things which choke spirituality. Watch them and root them out.

Observe also that the "cares" of this world are the weeds of the devil. How they do press upon us and hinder our spiritual growth. A man testified that while he had attended church for 20 years he had never heard a sermon because he was always thinking about his business. How about you?

IV. The Good Ground (vv. 8 and 15).

The harvest comes from the good soil, and how it does rejoice the husbandman as it brings forth even up to a hundred fold.

The hearers of the Word who are thus fruitful for God are "honest." They listen to really receive help and do something about what they hear. They have "good hearts"—a field plowed, prepared and weeded, ready to bring forth fruit. When they hear the Word they "hold it fast"—they are reverent, thoughtful and obedient to the Word. Then they have the "patience" to grow spiritually. It takes patient effort and devotion to do that, be sure of it (read Luke 21:19 in the R. V.).

In conclusion, we ask, "What then shall we do—sow only in the good ground?" No, let us ask God to break up the beaten soil of the wayside with the plowshare of His Word. Let us deepen the shallow soil, fight the weeds and thorns by His grace until they give up. Then let us go right on sowing the seed "in season and out of season" (read II Tim. 4:1-5).

In all such labors your heart will sing with joy because here and there you will be privileged to minister to "an honest and a good heart" which will bring "forth fruit a hundredfold" to the glory of God and for the encouragement of His faithful seed-sower.

But let every man prove his own work.—Gal. 6:4.

Safety for Bike Riders

Until recently very little attention was paid to safeguarding and educating cyclists but with an ever-increasing toll of fatal accidents occurring to bicycle riders, automobile clubs in many cities are campaigning to cut down these accidents.

Some of the safety rules suggested by these organizations include the following:

Ride in a straight line and do not change direction suddenly; keep close to the right side of the roadway; obey officers, stop and go signals and stop signs as motorists do; ride in single file on busy streets and never more than two abreast on any street; avoid riding too fast on hills and slippery or rough roads.

Never hitch on to moving vehicle; never carry anyone on the handlebars; cross all street car and railroad tracks at right angles; keep the bicycle in good operating condition with a suitable bell and an effective brake, and for night driving have a properly operating headlight and a taillight or good reflector; be sure seat and handlebars are properly adjusted. Wearing light or white clothing at night will help prevent accidents.

Appomattox is a growing town.

A Word About Thanksgiving.....

It has been 329 years since the first American Thanksgiving Day. Then less than 100 Pilgrims began the Thanksgiving tradition, and since GRATITUDE for the wonderful blessings of being an AMERICAN has been a part of our life.

Just as no nation in the world has more to be thankful for, and perhaps not as much, as America, even so, we here at BURGE'S are counting our blessings on this holiday occasion. To each and every customer of our department store, cafe, and three service stations, "We are truly grateful for the privilege of serving you, and of living with you in the greatest land of all!"

Our Department Store Will Be Closed All Day Thursday
